MESSAGE

It gives me immense pleasure to learn that New Era Public School is organizing its annual art exhibition, 'Creative Strokes', at the Gandhi Darshan Art Gallery, Gandhi Darshan, Rajghat, New Delhi.

Gandhi Smriti and Darshan Samiti has always been committed to encouraging the creativity of the younger generation. Art is not merely colors or lines on a canvas; it is a powerful medium for expressing the soul. Just as the life philosophy and thoughts of our beloved Mahatma Gandhi were simple yet profound, I see a reflection of that truth and beauty in the artworks created by these students.

I extend my heartiest congratulations to the school faculty, especially the members of the Art Department and the talented students, for organizing such a wonderful exhibition. I am certain that through this platform, students will find a new direction to flourish and showcase their creative brilliance.

I wish this exhibition every success and envision a bright future for all the young artists.

With best wishes,

A Message from the Founder Principal and Director

Art has always been humanity's most honest language. Long before words, we expressed ourselves through lines, colours, and forms. That instinct to create — to make something from nothing — lives in every child who picks up a crayon and decides, without hesitation, that the world needs more colour.

At New Era Public School, Mayapuri, we believe that education is incomplete without the arts. In a world increasingly driven by screens, algorithms, and speed, Art teaches us something rare and precious — how to slow down, observe, and feel. It builds patience. It builds courage. It builds the kind of thinking that no textbook alone can offer.

Creative Strokes is not just an exhibition. It is a declaration — that our students are not only learners of facts but creators of meaning. Every painting on these walls carries a story: of effort, imagination, and a young mind learning to trust its own vision.

Art also shapes character in ways we often underestimate. It teaches children to embrace imperfection, to try again, and to find beauty in the process — not just the result. These are lessons that stay far beyond the classroom. As you walk through this gallery today, we invite you to see more than artwork. See confidence. See curiosity. See young people discovering their voice.

We are deeply grateful to Gandhi Darshan Art Gallery for hosting this milestone, and to every student, teacher, and parent who made Creative Strokes possible.

May this be the first of many celebrations of the extraordinary creativity that lives within our school.
